Romans 10:13 (NIV)

A Night with the Lions

Daniel 6

"We've got to get rid of that Daniel," complained some of the Persian captains.

Daniel was one of the Israeli captives who lived in Babylon. The king made him one of the chiefs of the captains because Daniel had an excellent and faithful spirit. The other chiefs were jealous and looked for something to accuse Daniel about, but they couldn't find anything. Daniel had done nothing wrong! He was faithful to the king and God. Everyday, Daniel prayed three times to God.

So, the evil men wrote a new law and tricked King Darius into signing it. The law said no one could pray to anyone other than the king for 30 days or they would be thrown into the lions' den.

Daniel prayed faithfully to God every day. What would he do now?

Daniel heard about the law, but he didn't change his faithful prayers. Soon, his enemies reported Daniel to the king. He had broken that evil law.

King Darius realized the trick and tried to save Daniel, but even the king couldn't change the new law. That evening, Daniel was thrown into the lions' den.

All that night, the king couldn't sleep, because he was thinking of Daniel. Early the next day, Darius opened the den and called Daniel, "Has God saved you?"

"Yes! Oh King, my God sent an angel and closed the lions' mouths!"

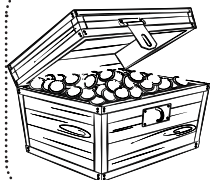

Daniel was safe and the king told everyone to honor the true God.
