Keep Trusting God

Acts 27—28:10

“It’s too close to the stormy season,” Paul said. “If we sail now, much will be lost!”

In Jerusalem Paul had been arrested for preaching about Jesus Christ. Now soldiers were taking him to Rome for his trial. To get there was a long journey across the dangerous sea. Paul tried to convince them not to travel in the stormy season, but the soldier in charge didn’t listen to Paul and away they sailed.

Soon after they left, a terrible storm swept over them. For fourteen days strong winds pushed them around until finally, they crashed on the rocks by an island. God told Paul that He would keep the people safe because they were traveling with him, but the ship was lost.

After swimming or floating, all the men made it to the beach and began to collect wood for a fire. When Paul threw wood on the fire, a poisonous snake jumped out and bit his hand! The people thought Paul would die for sure, but he didn’t. God protected him!

On the island, God did more miracles and healed other people. For three months they stayed on the island. Finally they reached Rome. Paul found that following God isn’t easy, but it is better to go through the storms with God than be anywhere else without Him.
